TODAY & TOMORROW

ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED RUSH — TIME DATED

The Academic Services Office is seeking nominations for the following fellowships and grants:

• American Council on Education Fellowships. Application deadline Thursday, October 31. The ACE Program prepares promising individuals for progressively responsible positions in higher education. Fellows are selected through a national competition for a year-long internship. The winners will work closely with top administrators who will serve as mentors.

• Instructional Improvement Projects for the 1985-86 academic year. Application deadline Thursday, November 7. Faculty and students are invited to submit proposals that meet any of the following criteria: improvement of existing instructional programs, development of new programs, introduction of experimental approaches to instructional content, and teaching evaluation activities.

• Affirmative Action Faculty Development Awards. Application deadline Thursday, November 7. Women and minority junior faculty in tenure track positions or with in-residence titles, and all other junior faculty are encouraged to apply.

• Robert Wood Johnson Health Policy Fellowship Program. Application deadline Friday, November 15. The program is designed primarily for mid-career faculty in health and health-related professions.

• The National Science Foundation's Alan T. Waterman Award. Application deadline December 31. The award is for young scientists not more than 5 years beyond their PhD and is for up to $100,000 per year for up to three years. Questions on program details should be directed to Lois J. Hamaty, executive secretary of the Alan T. Waterman Award Committee, 202-357-7512.

For complete information on nomination procedures for any of the above awards call x2218 or visit the Academic Services Office, Student Services building, lower level.

Thanks to you it works. . . for all of us. United Way.

A little competition has been added to this year's United Way Campaign, to be held on campus November 1 to 15. Hospitals and Clinics has challenged the rest of the campus to match its employee participation rate, and the School of Nursing, which last year had the highest participation among the four schools, has been challenged by Medicine, Pharmacy and Dentistry. Up-to-date announcements of who is beating whom will be flashed on the "UCSF TV News Update" monitors all around campus and will be posted in the display windows in the Medical Sciences lobby.

Again the UCSF campaign will emphasize participation, not the amount of the contribution. Employees are only asked to pledge what they can afford. Every dollar counts and helps someone in the community.

Last year, UCSF raised $130,000 with 31 percent participation. The campus hopes to greatly increase its participation this year.

United Way helped more than 1.8 million residents in the Bay Area last year in such community needs as child care, mental and physical health, housing, transportation and jobs.

Some 500 donor representatives from all campus departments will attend a briefing luncheon on Friday, October 25, from noon to 2 p.m. in the Millberry Union gym. During the campaign, they will be distributing envelopes to each employee. Employees may make a lump-sum contribution or authorize monthly deductions from paychecks. Employees also may use the donor option plan to designate their contribution to any one of the United Way agencies or to any health or human service agency in California that has tax-exempt status.

A UCSF study of 300 health care workers who care for AIDS patients at SFGH has found no cases of transmission of the disease to health care workers who are not in the high risk groups.

In a presentation in late September to the American Society for Microbiology, Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy, Julie Gerberding, MD, UCSF clinical instructor in medicine, reported that 300 physicians, nurses, laboratory personnel and other employees with intensive exposure to AIDS patients have been enrolled in a study which began in 1984.

Many of the health care personnel work with laboratory specimens from AIDS patients and more than one-third of them had sustained needlesticks or other accidents with contaminated fluids from AIDS patients.

Antibody testing of 240 of the 300 subjects has been completed and no antibody to the AIDS virus has been found in health care workers who had no risk factors. Sixty-nine of the workers had repeat testing nine months after enrollment and had not developed the antibody during the follow-up period, Gerberding reported.

Fifty of the 240 subjects were individuals with risk factors for contracting AIDS. Of the 50, 15 persons were found to have the AIDS antibody.

The campus will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the arrival of sociologists on this campus with a special day of research presentations on Monday, November 11, in Toland Hall.

As a medical sciences campus, UCSF is unique in having a graduate program in sociology offering a PhD degree. By combining the resources of a leading health sciences center with extensive research experience of faculty engaged in medical sociology, the doctoral program provides an innovative approach to research training by emphasizing both qualitative and quantitative methods.

The anniversary celebration will showcase the research produced by the

- 2-3 p.m.: "Social Psychology of Health and Illness."
- 3:30-4:30 p.m.: "Structural Issues in Health Care Delivery."

A social hour from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Faculty/Alumni House will conclude the day's events. For further information call Steve Wallace, x3964.

The new John Tung/American Cancer Society Clinical Nutrition Education Center at UCSF is sponsoring a weekly clinical nutrition grand rounds on campus every Friday at noon. The series includes a broad range of clinical topics pertaining to the role of nutrition in the prevention and treatment of disease. To receive announcements of upcoming lectures contact Marion Nestle, director of the nutrition education center, Room A C9, x1482.

The nutrition education center also is publishing a monthly newsletter called "Nutrition UCSF" for members of the campus community, announcing events, lectures, and other items submitted by campus members. Contributions must be received by the 15th of the month in order to appear in the next month's issue. To be placed on the newsletter mailing list contact Nestle at x1482.

Richard T. Johnson, MD, the Dwight D. Eisenhower Professor of Neurology, Microbiology and Neuroscience at Johns Hopkins University, is the Thirteenth Annual Robert B. Aird Visiting Professor of Neurology. He will discuss "The Pathogenesis of Acute Encephalitis: Studies in Thailand and Peru" as part of Neurology Grand Rounds on Thursday, October 31, at 11 a.m. in Room S 664.

Johnson, an international leader in the field of neurovirology, will be in residence at UCSF the week of October 28 to conduct rounds at the VAMC, SFGH and Moffitt/Long Hospitals. He also will discuss "Diagnosis and Treatment of Viral Encephalitis" before the San Francisco Neurological Society on Wednesday, October 30, at 8:30 p.m. at the St. Francis Yacht Club, SF.

The lectureship is in honor of professor emeritus Aird, who chaired the Department of Neurology from 1947 to 1966.

Former chair of microbiology Ernest Jawetz, MD, PhD, was honored on October 15 with the dedication of a new library named after him at the fourth floor entrance to Health Sciences East.

Emeritus professor Jawetz was chair of microbiology from 1962 until 1978, when he was succeeded by several acting chairs before Leon Levintow, MD, assumed the position in 1981. Jawetz first came to UCSF as an assistant professor in 1948, reaching emeritus status last year.

Jawetz is the senior author of Medical Microbiology, the most widely used textbook of its kind in the world. In the course of a long and distinguished research career, he has made many important contributions to the knowledge of infections of the eye and to other topics in the field of infectious disease.

A one-day conference on how changes in the health care market are affecting provision of health services to children will be held on Friday, November 1, in Toland Hall.

Key state and county officials, including Assemblyman Bert Margolin, chair of the Special Committee on Medi-Cal Oversight; Ken Kizer, MD, director of the California Department of Health Services; and Richard T. Silberman, chair, California Medical Assistance Commission, will discuss the state's responsibility to ensure adequate care for children.

UCSF speakers include Philip R. Lee, MD, director of the UCSF Institute for Health Policy Studies, and Neal Halfon, MD, MPH, UCSF assistant clinical professor, pediatrics.

For registration information call x3896.

How important is AIDS education for San Francisco's middle and high school students? Are San Francisco students at risk for getting AIDS, and how serious is the problem?

A free training program for middle and high school teachers will be offered Thursday, November 7, from 4 to 6 p.m. at the UCSF-Laurel Heights campus, 3333 California Street. Jackson Peyton, director of education at the SF AIDS Foundation, will provide basic information about AIDS risk and transmission. D. Nicollette Collins, MD, UCSF clinical professor, pediatrics, will discuss general health issues for teenagers which might increase their AIDS risk. A panel of San Francisco teachers will present approaches to teaching about AIDS.

The program is sponsored by the UCSF AIDS Health Project and the UCSF Community Health Education Program. Preregistration is required. For further information call x3209.

Two UCSF faculty members will be featured speakers at the third annual State Conference of the Patient Care Assessment Council, Thursday and Friday, November 7 and 8, in Anaheim.

Albert R. Jonsen, PhD, professor of ethics, and instructor, history of health sciences, will discuss "Bioethical Issues and Quality Patient Care." Donald L. Fink, MD, professor of family and community medicine, and medical director, outpatient and community medicine, SFGH, will discuss "The Shift to the Ambulatory Setting: JCAH Implications."

The overall theme of the conference is "Marketing Quality in an Era of Cost Containment." Kyra Janssen, manager of the UCSF Hospitals and Clinics Quality Assurance Program, is president of the PCAC board of directors and will be the presiding officer at the conference. Lora A. O'Rourke, quality assurance coordinator for the SFGH Division of Outpatient and Community Services, is president of the PCAC northern division and will be a conference moderator.

For further information regarding the conference call Janssen at x5136.

Thomas P. Stossell, MD, professor of medicine at Harvard and chief of hematology/oncology at Massachusetts General Hospital, will present the Paul M. Aggeler Lecture entitled "Leukocyte Motor Proteins" on Tuesday, October 29, at 11:30 a.m. in Carr Auditorium, SFGH. The following day Stossell will discuss "Phagocytes in Health and Disease" as part of UCSF Medicine Grand Rounds at 10:30 a.m. in Cole Hall.

Stossell is the editor of the Journal of Clinical Investigation and president-elect of the American Society for Clinical Investigation. He is the winner of the 1983 Dameshek Award of the American Society of Hematology for his important contributions to the study of phagocytosis.

The prestigious lectureship honors the memory of Paul M. Aggeler, MD, UCSF professor of medicine and internationally recognized authority in the field of coagulation, who died in 1969. Aggeler is particularly remembered for his discovery of coagulation factor IX and for his many contributions to hemophilia research.

Counselors and clinicians who wish to increase their knowledge of group therapy are invited to "The Group Therapy Symposium" to be held Friday to Sunday, November 8 to 10, at the Holiday Inn Bay Bridge, Emeryville.

The symposium will include lectures on non-verbal communication, family systems, cross-cultural dynamics and group responses to political events. Group therapeutic approaches to clinical and life problems will be discussed and demonstrated.

The program is sponsored by the Department of Psychiatry. For registration information call x77-256.

Physicists, radiologists, engineers and physicians from across the country will gather for a meeting on Clinical Magnetic Resonance Imaging, October 21-25, at the Hyatt Regency, SF. The meeting is sponsored by the Department of Radiology at UCSF, the center with the largest experience in MRI in the country.

MRI currently is showing the greatest benefit in studies of the pelvis, brain and cardiovascular system. It is now the primary imaging technique used to study abnormalities of the central nervous system, including brain tumors and muscular sclerosis. It is excellent for demonstrating abnormalities of the heart and large blood vessels, and is becoming the preferred technique to stage malignancies of the pelvis, particularly those affecting the prostate, cervix and uterus.

Twenty-one UCSF faculty and six visiting lecturers will discuss topics ranging from financial considerations of MRI to MRI of renal transplants. For further information call x5731.

Due to the substantial and continued increase in the volume of applications submitted to the Committee on Human Research, it has become necessary to limit the number of protocols to be put on the agenda each week. A new policy has been developed which states that the first 25 applications received each Wednesday by 5 p.m. will be circulated that Thursday and reviewed one week later. Any applications received after the cut-off will be the first items on the next agenda.

The Faculty Wives will hold their next meeting on Wednesday, November 6, 10:30 a.m. at the Faculty/Alumni House. Janey Kuhl and Logue Malouf from "Celebrations" party planners will offer their creative ideas on successful holiday parties. Luncheon will follow the presentation. Fee is $7.50. For further information contact Marjorie Campagna-Pinto, 921-6646.

The Faculty Wives are making their annual appeal for their Student Loan Fund. To contribute, make checks payable to Student Loan Fund and send to Mrs. Walter Way, 1140 Masonic Avenue, SF 94117.

A book sale will be held in the Langley Porter lobby on Wednesday, November 6, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to benefit the LPPI Patients' Library. Book donations are welcome. For further information contact Dale Houston, x77-427.

APPOINTMENTS

Robert S. Hascall: Director, Physical Plant. Hascall comes to UCSF from Western Washington University in Washington State where he was physical plant director. He replaces acting director Guy LeBreton, who will continue as associate director.

For treats without tricks, the Bay Area Regional Poison Control Center at SFGH has a few suggestions for parents to make sure children have a safe and happy Halloween.

Although there have been no serious incidents of candy tampering in the Bay Area in recent years, specialists at the Center urge parents to allow children to only eat candy that comes in sealed wrappers.

Children should be accompanied by an adult at all times and should confine trick or treating to familiar neighborhoods. James Buchanan, PharmD, UCSF assistant clinical professor of pharmacy, also suggests that children wear costumes that are easily visible at night; masks should be well ventilated with large enough eye holes to be able to see peripherally.

Parents with questions are urged to call the Poison Control Center at x2845.

The Center also reminds mushroom fanciers that this is the time of year that a poisonous type of mushroom begins to grow in Northern California. Called Amanita phalloides, this highly toxic mushroom looks similar to edible ones, but one bite can cause serious liver damage and can kill an adult. The Center suggests that people not pick any wild mushrooms at all, but if they do, they should learn about mushroom identification from an expert.

The third annual Edmund W. Overstreet Lectureship and Musicale will be held in conjunction with the Department of Ob/Gyn and Reproductive Science's annual fall symposium, Thursday to Saturday, November 7 to 9, at the Hyatt Regency.

Edward C. Hill, MD, professor and director, gynecology/oncology, and associate professor, radiation oncology, will deliver the Overstreet Lecture, "A Super Residency: Thirty-Five Years at UC-San Francisco," the first day of the symposium at 3:30 p.m.

Following the lecture, well-known Bay Area jazz musician Denny Zeitlin, UCSF assistant clinical professor of psychiatry, will play his piano compositions.

An internationally known obstetrician/gynecologist, Overstreet was a member of the UCSF faculty from 1946 until his retirement in 1971. He died in 1983 at the age of 74. He was an advocate of women's rights to control their fertility, and worked in infertility, menopause and surgical techniques.

The three-day symposium, "Advances in Obstetrics, Gynecologic Endocrinology and Surgery," will feature guest speakers Ronald S. Gibbs, MD, University of Texas at San Antonio; Leo D. Lagasse, MD, UCLA; and Richard J. Worley, MD, University of Utah.

For further information contact Martha Hooven, x4409.
